Breathitt Announcements.
We are authorized to announce B. M. COMBS a candidate for the office of Surveyor of Breathitt county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

There has been much talk about a railroad to tap this country, and that one must and will come before another decade there can be no doubt in the mind of any intelligent man. The immense amount of coal of all kinds to be found in this section; the great quantity and superior quality and variety of timber of all kinds; the fine cooking coal and iron ore, to say nothing of the prospect we have for silver, lead, &c., must bring us a railroad at no distant day. While we possess all these things, and more, we are yet too poor to build a railroad. The citizens of Montgomery should own a railroad from this section to Mt. Sterling, and the people of that county should see to it that we have one. The Kentucky and South Atlantic can be purchased, we presume, and if it can be, Mt. Sterling can be the "Golden Gate City to the East." No other road in the State now does, or could ever do, the business in freights that such a road would command from the time it was built. If every short-horned farmer in Montgomery county would donate the purchase-money of a bull calf towards a railroad to this section, and the county would vote a property tax of one percentum per annum for three years, this section would make Mt. Sterling second to no town in the State. All of our products would be emptied into her lap, and from there find their way to other markets, but not until Mt. Sterling had collected her tolls. Let us have the railroad by all means.

In the primary in this county, between Hon. J. M. Kash and Col. L. M. Day, for Commonwealth's Attorney, the latter received a majority of 35 votes, and will therefore go before the district convention on the 27th of this month as the choice of Wolfe for that important office. Mr. Kash was personally our choice, but we shall give Col. Day our undivided support, and do all we can to secure his nomination. Col. Day will make a good prosecutor, and by the race he ran in this county against, perhaps, the strongest man in it, he has demonstrated his ability to win in the district. He is well known all over the district as an able lawyer, a Christian gentleman and sober, discreet citizen, and will find enough friends in the convention on the 27th of this month to give him the nomination.

We are constantly in receipt of fruit of various kinds, and of the finest quality, from our friends in this section, for which we are very thankful. We enjoy fruit of all kinds, such little acts of kindness show that our humble efforts to give the people a paper worthy of them are appreciated, and last, though by no means least, the attention of capitalists will be directed to this section as a fruit producing country. Can Wolfe, Breathitt, Powell, Morgan and Menifee be surpassed in the amount of fruit produced, taking the acreage planted into consideration? We doubt it, and any horticulturist who will come here and investigate for himself will endorse our opinion.

Wanted—Fifty thousand Swiss and German families to come to Wolfe and her neighboring counties and plant vineyards. Good citizens of all other nationalities are also invited. Those who understand grape culture will find our cheap, though rich lands, a profitable investment, and will see the coal-measure soil set in grapes, this country would present the same thrifty appearance as the vine-clad hills of Germany and France.

J. Oleomargarine Hodges, in the Lexington Daily Observer, is getting up a neat little paper—quite a breezy sheet—cyclopedically windy, we might say—but there's Moore in it than he writes.

The Hazel Green Herald Gets Mixed.

[Lexington Observer.]

Mr. Spencer Cooper, the editor of the Hazel Green Herald, has been to Lexington lately, and his paper indicates that he had a nice time here, but the boys seem to have mixed drinks on him a little. He brings his horse to heel upon the political canvass, and in naming the winners says Mr. J. M. Corbin will get the County Attorneyship. If this settles the matter Colonel Allen had better look horns with Mr. Spurr for County Surveyor. Anybody that could sight a cannon certainly ought to be able to sight a theodolite straight.

Now, if John Oleomargarine Hodges had published our article in full, the readers of his little paper would have seen at a glance that our mistake was simply an oversight, the word "attorney" following Capt. Corbin's name as well as that of Col. Allen. But, admitting that we took "sunthin" while there, Johnny Oleomargarine, no one who knows you, will ever accuse you of setting "em up to us"—either mixed or straight—even if you do sip a swig on the sly occasionally at "some other man's" expense.

The Choice for Governor.

[Louisville Commercial.]

The Covington Commonwealth keeps up its demand that whoever offers for Governor of Kentucky shall show some proof of qualification for the office. "What has he done to promote the interests of the people?" and "What are the evidences of his statesmanship?" are the questions upon which it would have judged any man's right to the chief magistracy of the State. The Commonwealth holds up the same standard for inferior offices, which gives it the right to criticize the shortcomings of anybody elected upon any other basis. On the other hand is the Frankfort Yeoman, which made use recently of the expression: "We would infinitely prefer a stick to a Republican," the inference being that the worst man in his own party had better be elected to an office than the best man in any other party. The Yeoman's past course has shown, too, that the question of who is the best man in his own party must give way to the question of who has the party nomination. It is only necessary to mention that the Yeoman is the organ of the administration party in the State to explain why there is no distinctive State policy today and why so little progress is made by Kentucky as a whole.

The mistake made in the election of Dr. Blackburn as Governor, on a mere wave of sentiment, resulted in filling with trouble the waning years of a very worthy gentleman whose only fault was that his life-work had not trained him for affairs of State. The sitting Governor was elected upon no issue in State affairs nor has he since developed any policy of benefit to the public. An administration without a head cannot be expected to bring forth anything, and Mr. Knott's term of office will go into the history of the State as the most lifeless period in this generation, although the State is ripe for reforms in every branch of the public service. It is to prevent a repetition of such experiences that the Covington paper demands to know, before Gen. Buckner, for instance, shall be pledged to the Commonwealth, what he proposes to do for the State in the event of his election. The marble bust of Andrew Jackson in the State-house can pose there with as much dignity as a dozen live Governors and without any salary. If we are to have another Governor to do nothing it would be cheaper to substitute the marble statue for the living man. Personally there is not a better man in the State than Gen. Buckner, and his war record may be a sufficient qualification, judged by past standards. Gen. Buckner may even have ideas on current and future affairs which will fit him most admirably for the office of Governor, but of this we have not been informed. Mr. Knott ignored all invitations to discuss State questions during his canvass for office, and the people have been shown the mistake of accepting too much on trust. The same mistake may be made by electing another Governor without knowing his policy in advance. The election of a man merely upon his record is to invite a continuance of a lame revenue system, a lifeless condition of schools, a lethargy in the administration of justice and a postponement of a new constitution and a decent State capital.

Charter Peddling Must Stop.

[Louisville Post.]

The necessity of putting a stop to legislative jobbery and charter brokerage is manifest and imperative. The first work done by the General Assembly of Kentucky, so soon as it meets again, should be to revise the rules both houses, or, if requisite to a complete suppression of the practice, adopt additional rules, with the view to render attempts of this kind, of which we have had such recent and nauseous experience, impotent.

Not a session of the Legislature has passed for years without the enactment of a multitude of private statutes, intended either to make the blackmailing of established interests an easy matter or to aid individuals in extracting subsidies from the public for private gain.

Three-fourths of the railroad charters which are granted are never meant by the "incorporators" or the members of the Legislature who introduce them and effect their passage, to be really used for the construction of new roads, but are intended merely as the means of obtaining money from railroad corporations already in existence and in active operation. In nine cases out of ten they provide for the building of parallel roads through countries which supply barely enough traffic to support a road already running. The new line, if built, will not pay, but may seriously impair the business and the value of the property of the established line; to reap a profit out of their fears to make them buy their peace. The business conditions brought about by such practices are unhealthy and demoralizing in the extreme. So far from furnishing the efficient and salutary competition which regulates rail transportation within due bounds, and which the community desires, it absolutely destroys it. It teaches the railroad companies to bribe competitors of the track, instead of making rates to meet real and legitimate rivalry.

It discourages the investment in really needed enterprises of the capital which might be forthcoming to consummate them by the constant threat of ever-recurring exaction.

It induces a wide-spread demoralization, which substitutes the meanest and most corrupt species of chicanery and the worst form of speculation for healthy, persistent business energy and effort—effort of the kind which really develops prosperity and benefits the public.

By these legislative methods are not confined to the passage of railroad charters, and the amendments thereto. They are directed to other matters, affect other departments of business, permeate the whole field of commercial and industrial investment. Every man who has his money employed in any form or occupation, the blackmailer can reach, is at his mercy and must pay him his price.

VIRGINIA.

Tazewell County Items for The Herald.

CEDAR BLUFF, Oct. 25.—A jolly social was given by the young folks of Indian by Mr. H. E. Maxwell and lady, on the night of the 21st inst. A quilting preceded the social, which rendered it more enjoyable to the boys and more relished by the girls, who quilted so faithfully to get it out, and finally finished it with a small space left, which was quilted by them learning the boys how to quilt their names that night, your correspondent being one of the instructors.

T. A. Repass made a corn-shucking the other day, and promised the young "shuckers" a social that night, but they failed in getting it then. Last night they had the pleasure of realizing their corn-shucking social. Quite a crowd was present, and all deserve credit for their nice behavior. This is true, for your correspondent was an eye-witness.

Mrs. Hester Spotts and her daughter Carrie, from Jeffersonville, are the guests of Mrs. Dr. James Peery. Miss Carrie has been employed as music teacher in Cedar Bluff High School, and will make a break to-morrow.

The trustees of Cedar Bluff High School have elected Mrs. Prof. H. P. Bailey as assistant teacher. Our school is increasing, to our infinite delight.

Miss Jennie Greene, of Midway, is now attending school at this place. She is a charming young lady, and will make a "Steal" (Steele).

T. A. Repass will start to Belfast Mills, Russell county, Va., in about two weeks, to teach school at that place.

H. P. Clark, of your State, who has been in Virginia for sometime, returned home last week.

J. A. Repass has been employed to teach the school at Gray's Branch.

Patton Steele, who has been very ill with fever, is now convalescing.

Martha Scott is slowly recovering from her very severe illness. GARKEY.

STATE NEWS.

Louisville Commercial: It is asserted that in one Cincinnati prospect of efficient fraud is shown to control the election of fourteen members of the Legislature. Fourteen votes in any Legislature can hold the balance of power in the election of a United States Senator, so that it is apparent what an immense influence in the councils of the nation may result from comparatively insignificant local frauds. There are demands already for the abolition of the national Senate, and it is only necessary for the people to be made a little better convinced of their lack of a voice in the election of Senators to cause this demand to be enforced.

Louisville Commercial: Mr. Cleveland has subscribed $1,000 to the campaign fund for Hill in New York, which convinces the Graphic of the soundness of his Democracy. It happens that this is just two per cent of his salary, the rate fixed by Jay Hubbell in assessing government clerks for Republican campaign funds. Does not the President's action show him rather to be following in Republican footsteps?

Bruce Champ, of the Bourbon News, publishes the following two remedies for neuralgia: 1. Grate and mix horse-radish in vinegar, the same as for table purposes, and apply to the temple when the face and head is affected, or to the wrist when the pain is in the arm or shoulder. 2. Apply equal parts of camphor, clove, acetic acid and alcohol. It will relieve and not take off the skin.

Lexington Observer: Those all look favorable for getting the Capitol to Lexington. Frankfort is having waterworks, and if those people down there should get to fooling with water and contract a habit of drinking it, the next legislature would move to Lexington in a body before they got half through the session.

J. B. Richmond has been appointed postmaster at Hindman, in Knott county, in place of P. Allen.

OUR BATH LETTER.

REYNOLDSVILLE, Bath Co., Ky., October 26th, 1885.

Editor of THE HAZEL GREEN HERALD: DEAR EDITOR:—Allow me a short space in your valuable paper. Times are very hard in this part of the country. Fat hogs are selling at $3 per cwt., and other stock in about the same proportion.

Wheat sowing is about over, and corn gathering is well advanced. The price of the soil drops his head and his poor heart sinks within him, as he acknowledges that the gentleman's opponent called him out of the field yesterday and procured his promise to vote for him.

You return to the house with a gloomy look upon your face and remark to your wife, "The primary comes off Oct. 31st, and I guess a man will then have some rest."

Dr. Chennault Vindicated.

[Clark County Democrat.]

The asylum investigation at Lexington, which has caused considerable excitement in local circles, has resulted as we expected, in the thorough vindication of Dr. Chennault, the Superintendent. Ever since the removal of Dr. Bullock by Gov. Knott there has been a general wrangle, occasioned, principally by friends of Dr. Bullock and persons jealous of Dr. Chennault. It will be remembered that Dr. Chennault was first appointed by Governor McCracken, in recognition of his medical skill and ability to preside over such an institution and also because of his being a resident of Madison county the home of Governor McCracken. He proved to be the right man in the right place but was succeeded by Dr. Bullock, an intimate friend of Governor Blackburn. At the expiration of Governor Blackburn's administration and after Governor Knott was installed as Governor, Dr. Bullock was asked to resign and make way for a better man.

Governor Knott, through no preference of locality, chose to appoint a man whom he knew to be satisfactory, and, after due deliberation and thorough investigation, again honored Dr. Chennault with the position of Superintendent. This appointment greatly enraged a number of the old asylum commissioners who kept up such a terrible harangue that they were thrown overboard and a new set of Commissioners placed in their stead. The old Commissioners, backed by a number of influential friends, have kept up a continual howling ever since. They have persisted in charging the present Superintendent with innumerable offences unprovoked and unprovoked, and demanded an investigation of said charges, which resulted as every unprejudiced individual surmised.

Dr. Chennault has, perhaps, done more for the Eastern Kentucky Lunatic Asylum than any other Superintendent who preceded him. He managed the finances better, made more necessary improvements, and all in all given general satisfaction, and a better man for the place would be hard to find in this Commonwealth. We are glad indeed that the kickers have been completely downed again.

Bourbon News: There is talk of the retirement of Assistant Attorney General Good, at Washington, and of his replacement by Judge William Lindsay, of Frankfort. The Attorney General could hardly select an abler or more capable assistant in the work of the legal department of the government. Judge Lindsay is esteemed one of the finest and clearest headed lawyers in the South.

CHILL CURE.

OFFICE OF THE COURIER-JOURNAL, LOUISVILLE.

Dr. Wintersmith.

Sir: I value a rule I have observed for many years, the value of your remedy promptly, in reply to me, to the private assurance of my efficacy I had, and the good results of its effects I can testify to. My case was a very bad one, and I have been suffering from it for some fifteen years, has been for many of my life, induced me to test it in my family. The results have been the entire restoration of health. The first case was of two years' standing, in which I believe every known remedy had been tried with temporary relief, the chill returning periodically and increasing with increased severity. Your cure broke them at once, and there has been no recurrence of them for more than six months. The other case was of a milder form, and yielded more readily to other remedies, but the chill never returns at intervals until your medicine was used, since which time, from the opportunity I have had to judge, I do not hesitate to express my belief that your Chill Cure is a valuable specific, and performs all you promise for it. Very respectfully,

W. N. HALDEMAN.
